We are proud Redskins in our world at North 1501495

Through a riverbank's foilage emerges a Redskin's World.

A ringing bell . . . startling a sleeping student;
A stray dog . . . roaming North's halls;
A surprised teacher . . . finding a gift outside the door;
A daydreaming student . . . watching a bird build its nest:

Humorous moments such as these provide a break-away from routine classroom work. We are Redskins who are proud to be a part of the world at North. Our world is full of the best qualified administrators and teachers. It is a world of opportunity in the offering of such classes as German, exploratory teaching, DECA, family living, woodworking, and language laboratory. Our world is preparing us for an even bigger world, full of more opportunity, and amusing moments, outside our doors.

The Dome people micro-minied into their world of "poster power" and enchanting soul music. Frenzied filleying Redskins quieted as they encountered "Every Night at the Movies" or cooled remembrances of European travel and tandem rides with adventure on the ski slopes and in snow ball fights. This world was marked with wide, wide watchbands fish net stockings, short, shorter skirts, and longer hair.

Fashion minds existed in North's World

Senior Play, "Best Foot Forward," took long hours of rehearsal.

Buying a dance or game ticket for week-end activities, burning the midnight oil to complete tomorrow's homework, sitting through classes hour by hour, procrastinating term papers, poetry reports, and book reviews, seeking a grade or subject that will push him towards his future goals these are only a few of the happenings that compose a day in the life of a Redskin. Friday, the end to a busy week of activities and homework, brings a welcome sigh of relief to teachers as well as students. The every day routine is intertwined with assemblies, pep sessions, concerts, sports events, and dances.

Pleasures warmed daily experiences

The rumble from the cafeteria, the quietude during examinations, the echo of the pep session, and the slam of the locker typified the resounding cries from the Redskin world. The Redskin day was long, often beginning with the timely walk in rain or sub-zero temperatures and ending with the lengthy wait for the ride home. But the day was sparked by the slushy snowball fight, the thunderous pep session, the assembly on alcoholism, or the conversation with students from Iran and Brazil. Class competition and the colorful posters of The Phantom that lined the corridors livened the Redskin spirit during the three weeks of suspension from the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

Eye-catching spirit booster signs decorated the halls of North preceding all sports events. It was only temporary that North's spirit could not be displayed. Teams kept practicing, cheerblocks kept check on their lungs, and pep band never let their instruments get out of tune. Skins showed great enthusiasm at all games. When the fan bus pulled out for distant schools, spirited North Siders could be heard for blocks away.

Reinstatement wait didn't hamper cheering spirit of Redskins

The overflow of Christmas Bureau packages typified the share-by-giving attitude.

Pouring on community aid

Pleasure is the eight ball in the side pocket.

Expanding their horizons to include community action, Redskins marched for the March of Dimes, collected food and clothing for the Christmas Bureau, ushered at the Philharmonic concerts, and worked with the Youth Council. After a filled day, 'Skins relaxed to the sounds of bands and enjoyed simple pleasures.

Giving spare time, marchers collected for the March of Dimes and turned money over to Lois and Linda McKathnie.

The weeks of planning and hours of preparation for a formal will yield a lasting memory for Sherry Harter.

'Skins bubbled with a sense of self-giving

Cora Thompson and Jack Covault attained National Merit finalists ratings. Absent from picture is Chuck Graney.

The busied world revolved faster as 'Skins attained remarkable achievements. DECA and FTA each produced state vice-presidents along with an area Miss FTA. The Purdue Legislative Assembly yielded two most outstanding members of their respective houses. In addition to the junior Tri-Kappa winners, the senior DAR recipients, Good Citizens, and Spirits of North Side, a Redskin was runner-up for the Ernie Pyle journalism scholarship.

ACADEMICS

Academics our world at North revolves around our education. We at North Side are proud to have the best qualified administration and teaching staffs. Our occupational future depends mainly upon our grades and the learning we attain during our high school years. Our world is full of opportunity in the offering of such activities as: Distributive Education Corporation of America, Family Living, Woodworking, co-educational physical education, Exploratory Teaching, advanced chemistry, Russian, German, and a language laboratory. Our world is preparing us for an even bigger world outside our doors.

Musicians increased

The music department offered courses dealing with choir, band, and orchestra. Special classes involving music appreciation were also available.

All students were eligible to participate in varsity choir and training choir; however, those interested in A Cappella, Orchestra, and Varsity and Concert bands had to audition. These groups performed in three concerts in the auditorium that were open to the public, at games, and for pep sessions. The Traubadaurs, a small part of the A Cappella choir, entertained at the Senior Banquet. New to the department was the arts class, a requirement for all sophomores. By hearing and studying famous works students gained a greater appreciation of music.

This group has separated from the band and does so at least once a week so they can perfect their unity in every way.

Consisting mostly of girls, Chanticleers are practicing vocal cords under the direction of Mr. Harris.

their experience through performances

Becky Glock practices to work with her group in their separate session. Mr. Smith works with these separated sections.

Displaying their uniforms, the orchestra performs for the Christmas Assembly in the gymnasium.

Mr. Hallaway (at the piano) is accompanying the training choir in their melodic vocalizing. Training and vocal choirs are a combined group.

Dramatists used words for expression;

Students in this Dramatics class seem engrossed in the performance of two of their classmates. They too will have a chance to show their talents in the staging of their own performances.

The Senior Play gives many dramatic students a chance to excel. In the Senior Play, Military school seems to be very dull. These boys are being given last minute instructions before the Prom.

Dramatics teacher, Mr. Purkhiser, is pointing out the imaginary mirror students should be facing towards.

Artists used hands

Students who were enrolled in dramatics courses were presented a general background of drama and the theater. They were given the opportunity to perform in all school plays as well as in individual and group performances for other groups and organizations throughout Domeland. Stagecraft acquainted students with such aspects of the stage as lighting, scenery, makeup, and costumes.

Redskins were offered six different one-semester courses as electives in art. All students who were interested in these were required to take a basic course, which covered the fundamentals of drawing, design, and painting. This was a full year class and counted as semesters one and two.

Art teachers covered works from elementary drawing to stitchery and lithography. Students in Art III stitched objects in abstract on pieces of burlap. Others in this class wave their subject material on other types of cloth. Pictures finished on newsprint were made in the Art V course. Students first poured glue on the newspaper and then painted over it. When it was dry they removed the glue, thus leaving a white object on a colored background. The art VII class used the device of the linoleum cut. Paint was spread on pieces of linoleum and then used to print pictures.

Mr. McClead shows onlooking students how to start the inking in their newest assignment. They wonder if it's as easy as this.

This class of Mr. McClead is making a composition of items they choose; when completed they will run off copies of their work.

Though art students encounter many phases of artistic background, this student shows creative ability in the art of making jewelry.

Mr. Doehrman is being interviewed on athletic problems by beginning journalism students.

In an effort to beat the bell, journalists Jerri Kline and Sara Kolin write vigorously as they are tested on their skills on writing quickly and coherently.

Writers recorded news weekly, annually

Journalism, taught by Miss Norma Thiele, involved class study of the mass media and the communication skills. Instruments used by these classes included the publications, radio, and television.

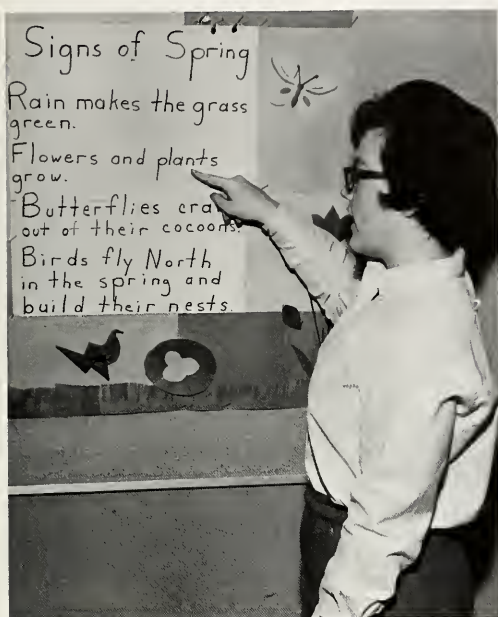

Redskins learned how to obtain information and then to compile it in the clearest and most interesting manner so that it would be useful to others. These students gained experience in writing stories, fitting headlines, and arranging pages in the most effective position through assignments given by their instructor.

Each student was required to gather news from one classroom which was assigned to him and to compile it in a short paragraph. This gave the student the opportunity to interview people and then to write the information correctly. These were printed in The Northerner.

By second semester these students were eligible to apply for positions as reporters with regular assignments on the newspaper. After completing the second semester they were able to begin work on The Legend, The Guide, or the News Bureau.

This marked copy of the Northerner is being examined by Northerner agents in Miss Thiele's journalism class.

Students gained experience for teaching

Nancy Jennings, a future teacher, is checking out the bulletin board to see that everything is in order.

Ring-around-around-the-rosy? This is one example of the varied studies exploratory teaching students make.

Mr. Lester Grile, superintendent of schools, and Dr. Lloyd Bridges, president of the Board of Education, spoke to the students in exploratory teaching on the different aspects of school administration and teaching. These visits were designed to help the group understand better all that their intended professions would entail.

The exploratory teaching course, taught by Mr. Augustus Schoonover, was open only to seniors who were planning on teaching as their profession. Because the course involved traveling to other schools, it required the time of the first two hours of the day.

During the first semester the students prepared unit plans and discussions as teachers do. They also were responsible for designing and preparing bulletin boards. Traveling to other schools began toward the end of this term; it involved observing teachers in kindergarten through the ninth grade.

The second semester allowed the students to choose one of the teachers they had observed and with her permission be a kind of "student teacher" in her room. This gave them the opportunity to participate in the classroom.

Mr. Schoonover explains to students Tom Moore, Sue Keith, and Dave Cashdollar some valuable assets in teaching correctly.

Business students learned many skills

Students studying clerical work are taught how to operate many kinds of business machines, including adding machines, xerox machines, mimeograph machines. Two students belonging to the special service center are operating a xerox machine.

New to the Business Department and the Fort Wayne Community Schools was Distributive Education. By this Redskins were enabled to combine their basic background of typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business law, and selling with actual work experience.

Students formed their background by enrolling in any of seven business courses. The fundamentals were covered in the general business class, which is essential to all business-minded 'Skins.

Handling records of business and personal income was the main purpose of the bookkeeping classes. Business Law taught students the legal aspects of management. Legal principals, practices, and procedures were also covered.

After 'Skins have successfully completed one year of typing and one of the shorthand, they are eligible to enroll in the advanced shorthand class. Pupils who are able to take this subject spend one hour a day taking dictation and another hour translating it on the typewriter.

Methods of marketing and displaying merchandise are among the topics studied in the selling class. Advertising is also covered.

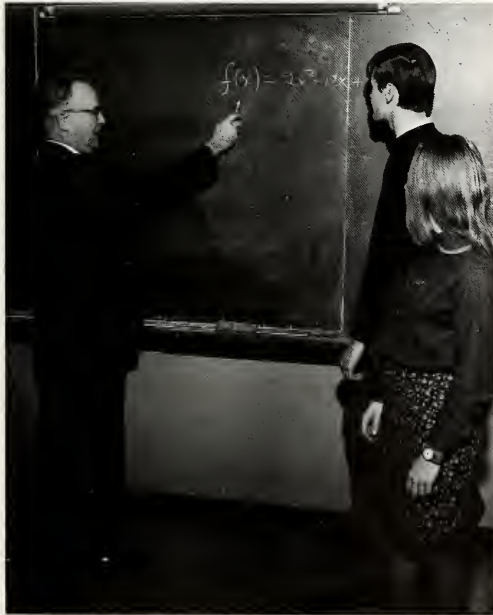

Mrs. Johnson listens in while one of her students takes dictation from shorthand tapes.

Mathematicians drew figures for help

In her advanced algebra class Mrs. Nusbaum shows Karen Belchner how to solve the problem on the board.

Arlene Rowald and Tim Strang watch Mr. Clark write out steps taken to reach their solution to the problem in advanced algebra.

As his geometry class works earnestly, Mr. Bickel takes some time to help one of his students understand the equation he is solving.

Redskins were offered five courses in the mathematics department from which to choose. College-bound students were encouraged to take a math course each year of high school.

The fundamentals served as a background for advanced courses and as a help in other courses which required calculations.

In their math classes students became involved with such skills as drawing and reasoning in their efforts to reach exactness. Beginning and advanced algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and senior mathematics were offered.

English teachers proved that analyzing Poems are a lasting part of our heritage, and in Mr. Pugh's classes students are given an opportunity to explore them.

The English department continued to help Redskins gain enrichment of literary knowledge. The teachers developed within the students an appreciation for literature as well as a verbal and written mastery of the English language. They stressed the promotion of better self-expression and the formation of personal attitudes.

Students were given the opportunity to apply their knowledge and ability through book reports, term papers, and analysis. Sophomores and juniors were required to write three book reports a semester. The sophomores devoted much of their time to studies of "Silas Marner," "The Pearl," and "Julius Caesar."

Mr. Autenreith's classes are studying "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." Here Kevin LaBona is reading a part.

Along with reading "Macbeth," juniors had their first encounter with time-consuming term papers. Seniors spent one semester critically analyzing short stories, poems, essays, and plays. The second semester they created their own literary works in preparation for college composition courses.

For students who were especially interested in writing, "Collage," a literary magazine published annually by the class, was offered. During the class time students were given assignments to write Japanese haikus, sonnets, and short stories. This gave them a chance to enhance their skills in writing and to assist in the publication of the magazine.

Mr. Fred Humphrey discusses the most outstanding quotes in "Macbeth" with his class.

Students learned to write and speak

Four third-year Latin students are shown hanging the paper mache masks they have constructed as an extra project for

Courses in French, German, Spanish, Latin, and Russian were offered to Redskins. An experimental class in French was also taught for the Encyclopedia Britannica Education, Inc. Mrs. Ramona Ransburg, who directed this course, presented revised and updated material to her students.

Through oral drills and written exercises, students learned to understand and speak these languages as well as read and write them. They also gained a better knowledge of the country and its people from which their particular language originates.

New to the department was the language laboratory. By use of individual earphones, each student received special help in pronunciation and comprehension. Miss Frances Plumanns, who was head of the department, died in October. She had been a member of the faculty for twenty three-years and was replaced as department head by Mr. Paul Lemke.

In Mr. Lemke's fourth year Spanish class, Marty Duncan is being questioned on different readings by the teacher and her classmates.

Steve Aiken and Mary Chappuis mark their progress in speaking Latin by recording their lessons on the tape recorder.

Spanish teacher Miss Laura Federspiel reports to her students on some pamphlets she received from Puerto Rico.

Latin classes test their skill in comprehension by first reading the material in a foreign magazine and then discussing it.

Mr. Frederick Veidt watches over his German class as they practice their verbal skills in the language laboratory.

Glavol Vahid, the foreign exchange student from Iran, informs her fellow French students of her native country.

In Mr. Young's Government class a student reports on current events, a vital part of our search for knowledge.

Students in Miss Ruth Eudoley's seventh period United States History class take advantage of the study period.

Five courses present man's progress

College-preparatory students were required to enroll in four of the five social studies courses that were offered to all Redskins.

World history, which is usually taken by sophomores, covered the wide range of history from the time when man first began to record the things that happened around him to present day.

All juniors were required to complete the United States history course. In this class students were familiarized with the history of their own nation. Seniors divided their year of social studies into two semesters. One was devoted to government, which involved the study of local, state, and federal operations. For the other, students could enroll either in sociology or economics; however, because of a shortage of teachers, a balance of students between the two courses had to be retained. Because of this it was not always possible for a student to get his choice.

Mr. Malott is teaching his class important things about social behavior in his sociology class.

Basic science studies develop in labs

In her first year chemistry class, Brenda Brothers finds it very amusing that the answer she was seeking was in front of her.

The science department offered courses beneficial to both college-bound and non-college-bound students. It was their goal to give the college-bound a firm foundation on which to base their further studies of science. Their object for the non-college bounds was to present to them the overall fundamentals of the general sciences.

The courses offered revolved around the basic studies of biology, chemistry, and physics. Biology introduces and develops knowledge of life and matter. Chemistry and physics relate man to his environment.

Forty per cent of the time that students spent in their classes was devoted to laboratory study. Experiments were worked out through scientific thought and by trial and error. In this way the students developed their knowledge of science the same way early man did.

32 Home Economics

Students gained

The home economics department taught both girls and boys skills and knowledge that is necessary for building homes. Family living and family management were offered to senior boys and girls; however, classes in clothing and cooking were limited to girls only. In clothing courses girls were taught to use the sewing machines correctly. In the intermediate course the students were required to make a blouse and skirt. The advanced class was responsible for one lined and one innerlined garment. All types of foods were studied in home economics II. Dishes, including salads and casseroles, were prepared in the laboratory.

Family living covered everything from dating to marriage. Students were required to give oral reports with another person on some aspect of life.

Students taking home economics gain experience in many areas. These students learn how to operate sewing machines, and will be taught how to make their own clothes.

Sharon Schnieder, Cindy Poinsett, and Julie Hendricson are all ready to prepare complete meals without fault.

valuable information for future living

Work with metal requires patience and skill to operate machines such as shapers, drill presses, and mills. Skill is developed by many long hours and hard work. Carl Bumgardner is operating a metal lathe.

Students enrolled in any of the seven industrial arts courses learned by applying the knowledge received through study and experimentation. The courses offered dealt with drawing, wood, metal, and mechanics. Drawing courses covered the fundamentals of the subject. The advanced students learned pencil tracings, blue-printing, and assembly. Beginning wood pupils became familiar with the hand tools and their safe use. The advanced class learned industrial methods of construction.

The metals classes gained experience in the construction of metal projects. Students in the advanced classes assembled projects using all available devices.

Power mechanics was offered in two semesters. The first was devoted to motors and the study of internal combustion, the other to the study of basic electricity.

John Bone is demonstrating some work in wood shop, John is one of many students working in the realm of industrial work. Students work with large machines, and tools having to do with wood.

In his advanced drawing class, Tony Romano is sketching some parts of a vice. This work takes time, patience, and a sharp pencil.

We Are Active Redskins In Our World of

ORGANIZATIONS

Enthusiasm spread through the halls of the Dome as clubs, both old and new, held their first meetings of the school year. DECA was freshly introduced into the world at North this year. The Music Department added a new dance band. Clubs presented an opportunity for students to participate in organizations and to learn responsibilities that would be of benefit to them in their future occupations. North's organizations consist of many honorary groups, such as Quill and Scroll, National Thespians, 1500 Club, Globetrotters, and Helicon. A few clubs met at classes, such as Collage and DECA.

Congressman E. Ross Adair sent this flag to the Education Promotion Committee chairman, Don Houts, to be presented to North Side.

Council sponsored

"Beat Snider" buttons, halls streemed with victory posters, and hot class competition sparked the first Spirit Week which student Council sponsored. The Junior Class won the Spirit Trophy. With the thought of strengthening morale, Student Council launched the School Code campaign, which brought forth, letter by letter, discussion of the code each week.

The Christmas Bureau, a project of adopting families by homerooms and clubs created student incentive to collect clothing, toys, and money for their families. Student Council assisted in the Community Action Seminar which was a new name for last year's Leadership Seminar. This was a series of programs presented every other week for three months with a speaker followed by a question and answer period. They sponsored the annual canoe race in the spring between North and Concordia High School. The officers, Dan Dager, president; Scott Kissinger, vice-president; and Jenny Nelson, secretary; visited the Student Councils of other schools during the year.

Student Council, sponsored by Miss Ruth Eudaley and Mr. James Lewinski, strove to develop attitudes and practices in good citizenship; to promote harmonious relations throughout the entire school; to assist in the management of the school; and to provide a form for student expression.

Mr. Augustus Schoonover, the sponsor, helped the members learn more about teaching and its rewards and understand how students and teachers relate to each other. "Educational Exchange," their theme, brought forth the project of exchanging our FTA students with FTA students of other schools to observe classes.

Elfs secretly distributed presents and poems for their teacher during April teaching career month. FTA also sponsored a Christmas Sing, a dance, a fall and spring car wash and a sweatshirt sale.

Representatives of all the FTA's in the state met in Indianapolis for the state convention. They heard speakers on the different aspects of teaching and the election of officers. Becky Glock, a junior, was the candidate in this area for Miss FTA.

Transporting people to the polls on election day, distributing baskets for the Christmas bureau, and donating blood for the Teen Gallon Blood Donor Award were the service and money making projects of Key Club. This club, actually three separate clubs under the guidance of Mr. Glen Bickel, Mr. Ronald Certain, Mr. Stephen Timler, and Mr. Donald Hamm, is sponsored by the Northeast Kiwanis Club to promote school and community service, to install religious values in the members and to inspire a feeling for others through working on several service projects.

The club performed school tasks of parking cars during football and basketball season and publishing The Key, which is a directory of addresses and telephone and homeroom numbers. This was the second year for the "Bachelor of the Year Dance." In the weeks preceeding the dance the three competing bachelors collected money toward the tennis courts. The bachelor collecting the most money was named Bachelor of the year.

Sue Loisel and Susie Henderson are helping usher at the Philharmonic Symphonies.

Those early arrivals at school who missed breakfast found the Z-clubbers selling donuts a welcome sight. Connie Salud and Betsy Hein are serving a customer.

Proposing, discussing, and voting on amendments took the place of many of the regular Z-club meetings when they drew up a new constitution. With the help of the sponsors Miss Vickie Jornod, Miss Linda Bozarth, Miss Martha Fox, and Mrs. Jacqueline Wer-muth, the constitution was finally approved.

Service to the school and the community whenever young women can be of help, their motto, was shown through their activities. They supported a Christmas Bureau family, made Easter baskets for the children in the pediatrics ward of Parkview Hospital, collected for UNICEF and March of Dimes, and sold donuts and milk to early arrivals at school.

Cut offs and plaid shirts, vittles, and the Marrin' Sam were all ingredients for the girl-ask-boy Sadie Hawkins Dance which was continued this year along with the traditional all-school carnival. Z-Club undertook ushering for the Philharmonic and Children's Symphonies as a new project.

Legend staff studied meaning of words

Sara Kalin seems to be waiting patiently for Carla Falls, editor-in-chief, to write out a subscription blank for the Legend.

The Legend staff worked to produce a book full of memories that can be looked at in years to come. To accomplish this, the staff gathered information by seeking teachers and counselors, studied meanings of words to get the most fitting description for copy, compared the effectiveness of pictures, and rushed to meet deadlines.

The staff consisted of fifteen, and was helped by Miss Norma Thiele, faculty sponsor. Editor-in-chief was Carla Falls, assisted by Carolyn Daniel. Other editors and their assistants were: Scott Kissinger, sports; Cheri Gardner and Kathy Place, underclass; Jean Kiel and Sharon Baney, academics; Karen Williams and Cheryl Orminston, faculty; Ruth Scheele, seniors; Sharon Anderson, Brenda Brothers, and Ginny Jordan, activities; Dave Yark, Index; and Sue Kramer, business manager.

Carolyn, assistant editor, explains to Cheri Gardner, editor of the underclass section, how to draw spaces for pictures and names on the layout sheet.

Cropping all the pictures used in the Legend was the job of Sharon Baney, academic section assistant and all around helper.

to bring memorable annual for 1967-1968

Jean Kiel reads over copy while it is still in the typewriter to find any typographical errors.

Amused seems to be the mood of Karen Williams as she takes it easy checking her rough draft of copy.

Brenda Brathers, Ruth Scheele, and Scott Kissinger admire Miss Thiele's charm bracelet which was bought by a former Legend staff. This year's Legend staff added the second charm.

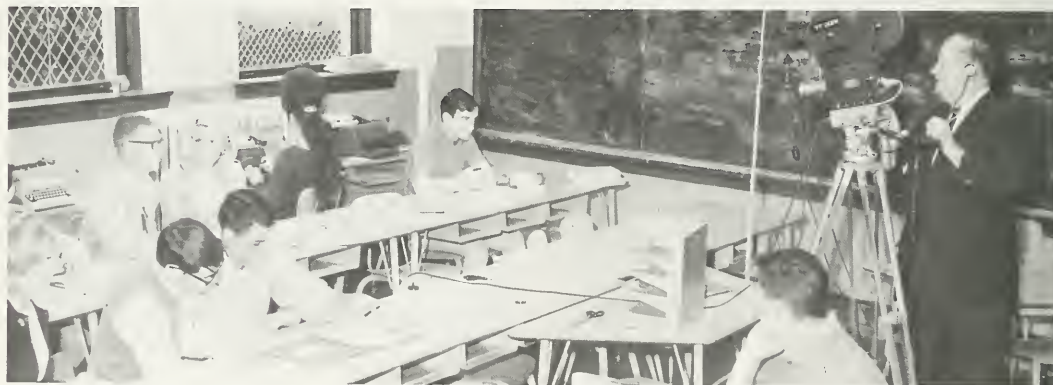

Jan Stedman arrives at school at 7 a.m. Wednesday morning to help her fellow staff members finish last minute details.

Weekly newspapers

Writing articles, checking accuracy, and planning lay-outs of how the articles would appear in the final copy took much discussion and thought on the part of the Northerner staff. After checking the assignment book, reporters collected the facts by contacting and interviewing students and teachers. Writing the articles required compiling, discarding, and arranging facts in the most effective way. At 7 a.m. every Wednesday morning the Northerner staff come to school to finish last-minute details by once more checking the lay-out and reading the material for accuracy.

At the Publications Banquet in January, Miss Thiele, adviser, awarded recognition pins to persons who earned fifteen hundred to seventy-five hundred points. She also announced the editors for second semester.

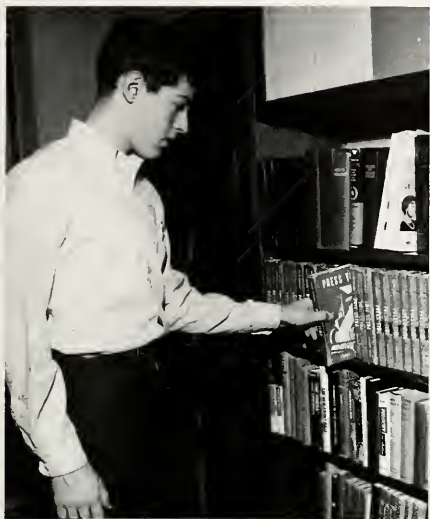

While in the process of publishing the Northerner, WANE T.V. films the staff to be presented later that week.

Northerner newspapers are folded and sent to other schools around the country to compare style and technique. This is done with each publication of the paper.

required extra hours of staff's time

Nat Zweig, copy editor, picks out a reference book from the new bookshelves. He uses many types of reference material to check spelling, sentence structure and paragraph coherence.

At one time or another the entire staff folds papers for the distribution to the student body.

Honorary clubs recognized journalists

Members of the 1500 Club accumulated at least that many points by writing articles and selling advertisements and subscriptions for the Northerner.

Outstanding work for at least one year on the Legend or Northerner and a good senior standing were the qualifications for Quill and Scroll, an honorary organization for persons in the upper third of their class.

For activities, the Quill and Scroll planned a banquet at which new members were awarded pins and a subscription to the nationally published magazine, Quill and Scroll, and 1500 Club members were given their recognition pins.

Participating in interscholastic debate, attending student congresses, competing in sectional, regional, and state contests, and debating at Muncie Central and New Haven as a tradition were the main activities of the Debate Team.

The purposes of the team were to help students become more analytical thinkers, efficient debaters, and effective speakers. To keep in practice, each member met weekly with his partner to discuss and debate the present topic.

"Never missing a show because of vacations, bad weather conditions, or other problems in three years," was an important tradition for Highliters, according to Mr. John DeYoung, sponsor. Informing the public of the activities, curricular and extra-curricular, of the high schools in and around Fort Wayne was the main purpose of "High School Highlites," recorded every Thursday night at WGL and broadcasted on Monday night.

DECA traveled to officers conference

Although DECA, Distributive Education Clubs of America, is in its first year at North, the club already has a state officer. Clyde Bowlin, a junior, was elected vice-president of the junior members at the State officers' conference. The Club members attended other officers' conferences in the fall and the regional, state, and national leadership conferences in the second semester. The regional was a contest consisting of making layouts for newspapers; giving a sales demonstration; and judging store window displays where the member who came the closest to the judges' score won the contest. Through this contest the members learned to develop leadership in the field of distribution and to develop self-confidence. DECA also had a Spring Banquet with guest speakers at which the employers of the members were the guests.

This club met once a day, period 3, and was considered a regular class. Mr. William Phillips, sponsor, helped teach the members how to choose an intelligent occupation in distribution.

Paula Baldwin and Dewayne Egly, members of DECA, show the display merchandise used in their after school work.

Business Club sold pens; A-V advanced

Karen Williams (Third row) Beth Hutson, Glaria Leist, Ruth Hassig, Debbie Flandt, Mrs. Ashe, Mr. Phillips (Fourth row) Jeanne McDermott, Linda Reppert, Lois Winquist, Mary Busian, Sue Shoup, Tami Mills.

Taking the role of salesmen, Business Club members sold ball point pens to learn the ropes of business transactions and to raise money for the club treasury. The club made tickets and programs announcing various activities throughout the year. Teachers located student assistants through club sponsors Mrs. Wilma Ashe or Mr. Charles Phillips.

Because overhead projectors and transparencies were new, members of the Audio-Visual Club learned to use them and explained the operation of them to teachers.

Their membership drive was sparked by the decision to teach anyone who was interested to use the machinery after school for their own benefit.

Dave Cashdollar describes to Roger Miller how to focus the movie projector used for the movies shown in the auditorium.

J. Holbert, A. Bocik, S. Shoup, S. Cochran, A. Dick, A. Petty, N. Linn, J. Nomina, S. Harter, M. Harsch, K. Hughes, M. Sievers (Fourth row) D. VonHouten, R. Fry, K. Williams, L. McKathnie, D. Headford, L. McKathnie, C. Daniel, C. Malich, D. Norris

Helicon hosted traditional Spring Tea

Santa Claus, as Denny Van Houten, and members of Helicon wrapped fruit and dramatized the Christmas spirit to entertain residents at the Allen County Home. Traditional projects included the Spring Tea, which honored seniors and their mothers, and the Senior Forewell Banquet with its witty poems about each senior. The juniors gave a farewell and good luck speech to the seniors, who responded with a good luck speech for the juniors.

Helicon sponsored a potluck and the Washington-Lincoln Assembly. The club, sponsored by Mrs. Marjorie Spoolstra and Mr. Robert Pugh, promoted an interest in literature by stimulating a discussion of literary topics such as plays which were written by themselves or Broadway plays such as "Green Pastures."

Sherry Harter and Karen McMaken compare one of Dorotea Snow's children's books, which are mainly biographies about famous historical characters, and her newspaper column. Mrs.

Snow spoke to Helicon members on how she had become interested in writing books for the child in the elementary graders.

Drama, writing require creativeness

Ron Mendenhall, Bob Miller. Those not in the picture are Susie Brown, Angie Pease, Paul Morkey, Don Smith, Sue Shoup, Sherrill Petgen, Kim Gray, Bruce Earnest.

National Thespian Society is an honorary organization, and does not have officers, meetings, or projects. Its sole purpose was to recognize outstanding interest and work in all phases of dramatics, including the Senior Play, Varsity Varieties, and other school performances. Members were chosen by Mr. James Purkhiser, the sponsor, in the spring and were inducted by him and other members of the society.

Field trips to the Diehm Museum, Lindenwood Cemetery, the Allen County Court House and Allen County Jail increased Collage members' understanding of life by showing them examples of society, past and present. The Montessori School, letting children teach themselves through experience, provided an example for Collage to follow. The Collage also sponsored the Bookshelf, located in the Cafeteria.

Hot-dog roast acquainted new members

JCL members are (Bottom row) Jim Basserman, Candy Carnahan, Tina Carboni, Marcia McClure, Ruth Johnstone, Sue Johnston, Kathy Albright, Mary Wiegand, Debby Gething, Deb Balyard, Kathy Whitehead, Pam Mertz, Ava Kiefer (Second row) Nanci Redman, Janet Nill, Darlyn Dickelman, Beth Weger, Betsy Hein, Amy Smith, Anne J. A hot-dog roast provided Junior Classicists a time for becoming acquainted and initiating new members. Mrs. Bridgett Gruebner showed slides and spoke on ancient Greece to encourage an interest and appreciation of this civilization. JCL-MLC combined for a Christmas party in the cafeteria, and the dance

"Groovy Kind of Christmas" took place later that week. Members attended the state convention in Indianapolis, and highlighted the closing of the year by displaying individual talent making costumes and food for the Roman Banquet in April.

MCL picnicked at Lakeside Park

The Modern Language Club combined with the Junior Classical League to celebrate Christmas with a foreign flavor. They sang songs from France, Germany, Mexico, and Spain, and recited the multi-lingual "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

MLC members picnicked in the fall at Lakeside Park and sponsored an all-school guitar recital. The club, sponsored by Mr. Paul Lemke and Mrs. Ramona Ransburg provided extra contact with aspects of foreign culture for the members.

The members of MLC are (Bottom row) K. Oser, Y. Gutierrez, J. Stonebreaker, S. Fick, M. Oswald, C. Lehrman, D. Richey, J. Kline (Second row) R. Buecker, R. Johnstane, K. Andrews, J. Morkey, M. Blue, S. Kolin, B. Brothers, D. Kruse (Third row) K. Bilger, A. Lusk, B. Lewis, N. Wentz, J.

Tri-M, a national organization originally called "NSI" or North Side Instrumentalists, expanded in 1964 to include the entire Music Department. Through nomination and selection, members come from Concert Band, Concert Orchestra, and A'Cap-pella Choir. Members served as "apprentices" for one semester. They revied regular members by running errands and participating on committees. Another fulfillment for membership required "spike" solos in the student's porticular field.

Dr. Andy Harper spoke on the development of the music program at the I.U. Regional Campus. Mr. Glenn Roy, Music Director of the Dayton Creative Art Center, Dayton Ohio, spoke of his experiences working with 300 talented students from Dayton in a federally-sponsored program in the fine orts.

Y-Teens promoted YMCA's Activities

Writing letters to servicemen in Vietnam was a project of Y-Teens. Millie Collins and Linda Hugenell mail letters they have written.

Glayol Vahid speaks on the differences between teenagers in Iran and the United States. Grouped around her are the officers of Y-Teens, left to right, Brenda Rhodes, Barb Melvin, Patti Schmid, Linda Burtzner, and Anne Ramsey.

Y-Teens worked to promote the blood drive by going to local stores asking people to donate money for the Red Cross. Services performed at the Parnell Nursing Home included feeding patients, typing, running errands, and entertaining the elderly by reading and playing games with them. During the year, Y-Teens enjoyed free swims and luncheon affiliated with the YWCA. "The Hanging of the Greens," the decoration of the YWCA for the Christmas season and the "Lamb's Pen," a babysitting service at the Christ Child Festival were ways Y-Teeners showed appreciation for the YWCA.

Phy-Chemers work on science projects

"Phizz Phling," Phy-Chem's money boosting dance, enabled members to purchase materials for science projects which were entered in the March science fair. Participants obtained advice from club sponsors Mr. Ronald Dvarak and Mr. Merle Rice during club meetings. Experiments included accoustical designs for rooms, radioactive mutations of bacteria, effects of sound on working, and anesthesiology.

Members sponsored the Thomas Chemistry Award, a new award begun this year in memory of former Chemistry teacher, Harald Thomas, and gave it to the student who received the highest academic average and did the most outstanding work in chemistry.

This Phy-Chem member is accumulating data for his science project. Phy-Chem sponsors Mr. Merle Rice and Mr. Ronald Dvarak sponsored the entries this year. Members received extra help during club meetings. The judging was done by college science teachers from Indiana University and Indiana Tech.

Globetrotters debated at Purdue Campus

To study foreign countries, their lands, people, customs, and methods of government, and by so doing, promote international peace and understanding are the purposes of Globetrotters; the social studies club. Some members attended a debator's conference at Purdue University, consisting of a debate and a mock congress, and participated in the latter. The mock congress consisted of senators, representatives, and legislators who introduced bills, debated them, and sent them through congress. There the bills were either accepted or rejected. They went through all of the steps a bill would take in the United States Congress.

Traditionally, the club sponsors the Junior class trip to Washington D.C. and New York, a dance, and the Thanksgiving assembly.

Dabblers-GAA promote outside interest

Pumpkins, crepe paper, and face masks made from paper mache, added to the spooky atmosphere of Daffi-Dabblers' Halloween party.

Displaying self-constructed Christmas cards in the cafeteria earned funds for the club treasury. As traditionally done, Dabblers decorated the Schaal with evergreen wreaths and baughs enhancing the main entrance. Lights, roping, and paper poinsettias brightened the main halls. Later that week they went on to Parkview Hospital children's ward to draw snowflakes, Santas, and Christmas trees on the windows, talk to the children, and have refreshments.

Basketball and volleyball was a part of the competitive activity of sports days between North's Girl's Athletic Association and those of New Haven and Lea. Other activities of the GAA were a car wash and Awards Day. During the year girls participating in athletic events received points toward a pin, letter, or plaque given to seniors only.

Dancers and swimmers created routines

Beth Hayes, Valerie Harper, Debbie Kieler, Lou Ann Johnson, Sara Kalin, Bobb Ross, Debi Collinson (Third row) Linda Covey, Renate Warnstadt, Anno Swink, Bobb Knuth, Sherry Nine, Laurie Yingst

Splashing to the theme of "Trade Winds" at the traditional water show, Ripplettes worked with the male auxiliary in coed numbers. The 14 new members wore clumsy signs through a three-week spike period. Mrs. Lynn Beer chose the new members on the basis of personality, general appearance, and ability in dives, stunts, and strokes.

Modern Dance Members donced for Back-to-School

Night and sponsored a bake sale at Northcrest Shopping Center to earn money for the new Indian costume. The club was open to anyone, regardless of dance background and was under the direction of Mrs. Lynn Beer and Miss Kathleen Sparks.

The members learned and created new dance routines to further interest and skill in performing different jazz and modern dances.

Dance Band attended Notre Dame clinic

A second dance band composed of mostly sophomores who worked on jazz fundamentals joined with the Wildsiders. The directors were Mr. Frederick Autenreith and Mr. David Platt.

The Wildsiders named from their theme, "Walk on the Wild Side," attended the NISBOVA contests where they competed against 35 bands in the district contest and were one of the five to go on to the state contest. This band was directed by Mr. Gary Smith.

Both bands were composed of 20 members who were selected on the basis of talent from the music department and who practiced on Wednesday nights.

The Color Guard, which joined the band at the Smith-Walbridge Camp for a week, learned many fundamentals and part of the show for the Northern Indiana State Band, Orchestra and Vocal Association. They displayed their colors at all home football and basketball games, and marched with the band in all parades and contests.

The Arrowettes, along with the band, presented over twenty routines at football and basketball games, parades, and area twirling contests. Sponsored by Mr. Gary Smith, they were the recipients of several awards, including first place at the NISBOVA contest and the Wavette Traveling Trophy, presented to the most outstanding twirling corps in all classifications each year during the Holiday Contest at Elkhart.

(Third row) Lynn Stemen, Jannette Knepper, Marilyn Kelder, Barb Melvin, Annette Knepper, Brenda Rhodes

Marching Redskins furnish rhythm

After a week under the direction of Mr. Gary Smith at Smith Walbridge Camp during the summer, Marching Band started the school year ready for the football season. Sophomores were already aware of marching techniques from their camp experience. The band prepared contest shows and worked on techniques for their three half-time shows. Head drum-majors Ron Pinter and Debby Gehring, along with junior drum-major John Albright, attended the camp.

Fall proved a busy time for the Marching Redskins with its many half-time shows, Veteran's Day Parade, State School Parade, and NISBOVA Marching contest at New Haven, where the Redskins won a superior rating.

School concerts and outside functions

Manchester College invited instrumental music students who acknowledged a desire to spend their Spring vacation on the campus. They composed and practiced pieces with the college musicians in preparation for the Spring Festival Concert given at Manchester at the close of the week. The North Side orchestra obtained membership in the All-City Orchestra composed of the high schools of Fort Wayne. The participants of each school met every Monday night at South Side in preparation for the All-City Spring Concert, which made aware to the public the achievement of the city's high school music departments.

Concerts given at various junior highs throughout the year promoted a continuing interest in orchestra at the high school level. The orchestra played at the Thanksgiving and Christmas programs and also at the winter and spring concerts. Betsy Wilson, first violinist, received the highest recognition of achievement and respect, that of concert-master.

Varsity Choir met during the fourth period lunch hour, giving those students an opportunity to participate in vocal singing who would not otherwise have room in their program. Composed mainly of sophmores and juniors, it was a stepping-stone toward A'Cappella. They sang only at school concerts.

Troubadours, chosen from A'Cappella to perform where the larger choir could not, sang at the Chamber of Commerce, the Daughters of American Revolution, tion, and for Youth Government Day at the Lantern. For the Christmas season Troubs practiced to appear on the Jack Gray television show presented on Christmas Day. They also recorded Christmas music with A'Cappella played on WOWO, and sang for Helicon at the Allen County Old People's Home. Later they performed for the South Side Kiwanis Club and gave concerts for Varsity Varieties, the Senior Banquet, and Honor Banquet.

Troubadour members are (First row) Barb Hague, Jon Kubiniec, Katy Albright, Deb Faust, Ruth Nevagt, Karen McMaken, Betsy Wilson, Cindy Poinsett (Second row) Linda Lees, Ellen Walter, Dana Nordyke, Cynthia Nord, Sherry Harter, Sue Shoup, Karen Belschner (Third row) Dove Haffer, Dale Osborne, Ken Jackson, Richard Amelung, Harvey Ziegler, J. Increased in number from 54 to 83, Chanticleers, made up of junior and senior girls, sang in the Christmas, winter, and spring concerts, and concerts during the regular school day. A smaller group of 37 girls, called the Girls' Ensemble, participated in concerts outside of school such as a Christmas Party for Alumni Mothers. This was to help take the load off other performing groups. Both groups were under the direction of Mr. Alvin Harris.

Chanticleers gave each girl the opportunity to produce the unique sounds and beauty of girls' voices, and to give her the satisfaction of sharing talent.

Also participating in the Christmas, winter, and spring concerts was the Training Choir, under the direction of Mr. Willard Holloway. This group was made up of sophomores and was open to all who were interested. It was a training class in which they learned to develop their voices for the different singing parts. From this group, singers were chosen for the A'Cappella and Chanticleers choral groups.

The 85 members of A'Cappella sang at school assemblies, evening concerts, and Varsity Varieties. This group is chosen from Chanticleers and Training Choir by audition. It offers the opportunity to talented young singers to take part in a select mixed choir that performs both traditional and contemporary music, including some songs from Broadway Plays.

Chosen from A'Cappella is a smaller select group called Traubadars. Both groups are under the direction of Mr. Williard Holloway.

The A'Cappella has been at North since 1932 and has been under only five directors. During this time they have attended a National Music Educators Convention and an Indiana Music Educators Convention. They have performed many different types of music including some musicals.

We Are Athletic Redskins In Our World of

SPORTS

"Happiness Is Being Able to Play!" Truer words were never spoken. North's athletic year was thrown ajar temporarily as the IHSAA battled with one of our basketball players on his ability to participate in high school sports and North was suspended. On January 19, North was reinstated and 'Skins once again showed loyal support to the team. All games, in the frigid football stadium or the warm gym, were well attended by the fans of NSHS.

Redskin football squad helps determine position into the Redskin defense. Gary Parkerson (22) is the free safety. Muncie Central won the encounter, 12-0.

The varsity football squad was made up of many underclassmen who came in many times to clinch victories. Inexperience also prevailed on the varsity, but Ken Barnett and Steve Keever, playing their first year of football, both lettered. Injuries also hurt North as Roman Robles, Bob Bossard, and Bruce Keever were lost from the action due to their injuries.

winner in city series prep competition

The 1968 North Side gridiron squad finished with a 2-7 record but because of the Redskins, the final city standings ended with Concordia and Bishop Dwenger tied for the championship.

After suffering four straight defeats to Muncie Central, Central, Luers, and South, the Redskins exploded for 20 points in the first half against Dwenger and held off the Saints' second half assault for the biggest upset of the year by a 20-19 count.

Following the Dwenger battle, North faced the Concordia Cadets. Playing on a rain-soaked field, the Redskins fumbled the opening kickoff and suffered a humiliating defeat by a 20-0 score.

North's second and last win of the year came against the Central Catholic Irish. The extra point by Greg Lewis was the only difference as North squeaked by on a 14-13 score.

Co-captain Steve Mann faces the team captains of the Central Catholic Irish at the flip of the coin to start the game. The Redskins defeated the Irish 14-13 for their second victory.

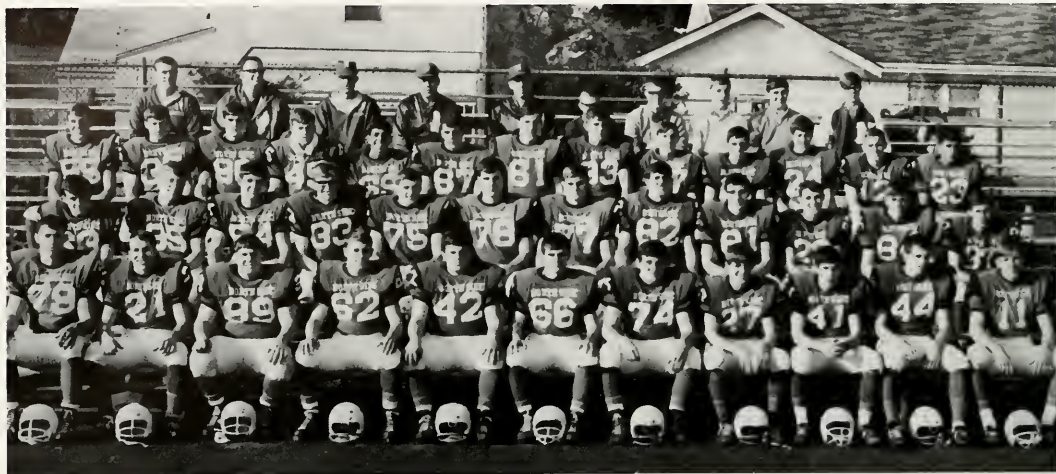

Line Coach Hyrle Ivy was jubilantly carried off the field after the Redskins won their second game, defeating Central Catholic Irish 14-13.

Sophomore linebacker Bill Cowan hauls down Central Catholic quarterback Don Didrick. Bill started the season as a quarterback, but switched to offensive halfback and also played defensive linebacker.

Underclassmen dominate varsity grid team

Junior running back Roman Robles sparked North's offense many times throughout the season. Roman played on kickoffs and ran from the left halfback position.

Senior Bob Furniss is hauled down by Bill Sullivan (44) of Bishop Dwenger. Furniss, along with Bill Cowan, led the Redskins in scoring by romping for two touchdowns.

Reserves finish season with 3-4-3 record

The reserve football team won more games this year than any sophomore group within the last five years. Coached by John Becker, the hard-nosed players from the three feeding junior highs combined for a 3-4-3 record. Starting the season with three losses, the sophs evened their record by defeating Snider, Leo, and South. Colder weather, along with rain-soaked fields, then set in. With these conditions, the Redskins played two scoreless tie battles against Central and Dwenger. The final loss came by way of Bishop Luers, which bounced back from a 6-0 deficit to defeat the 'Skins 14-6 in the most controversial game of the year. Jim Benecke was the only quarterback for the entire season, having no backup man and did a commendable job in spite of the pressure applied.

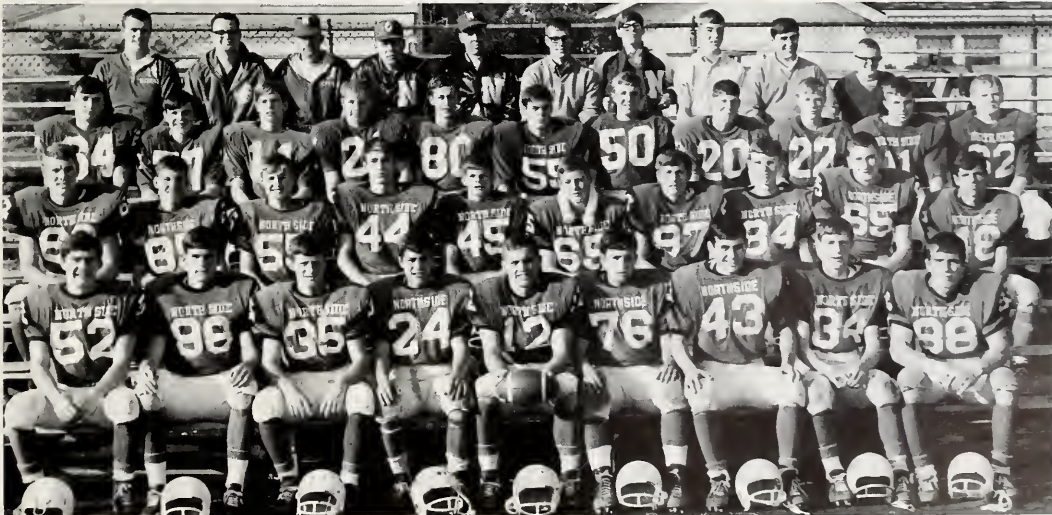

Keith Showalter tries his foot in an extra point attempt prior to the reserve practice. Larry Brown is holding, while Jim Givens (11) and Mike Kipling (44) await their turn.

The Cross Country team finished their season with a mark and placed high in all of their invitational meets. Junior Tom Blakely swept all awards in Cross Country by unanimously being elected captain by his team members and given the top two awards for being the most dedicated runner and most valuable team member. Besides Tom Blakely, other runners contributed to North's success. The high placings of Neil Anderson, Bill Loechner, Mike McMahon, Bill Blosser, and Dave Cook allowed the Redskins constantly to be a threat to state foes.

Colts, Skunks, and Knicks supply action

The intramural league was filled with action the entire season. The Colts' football team took the championship over the Bears in the new program which was set up for boys with seventh period study. When basketball was played, the Skunks and Knicks took the spotlight as they finished with 37-2 and 35-4 records respectively. The Skunks were the champions, led by senior Bill Schumaker. Volleyball was next for the intramural boys. The Trojans, Oop, and Nads were the best squads for 1968.

won first prize of Cheerleading Association

Practice takes up much of the time of the varsity cheerleaders. This summer they attended the United Cheerleading Association Camp at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. They brought the first place trophy home with them to show for their efforts.

The varsity cheerleaders, Jean Jernstrom, Sherry Harter, Katy Albright, Jacque Zirkle, Sue Shoup and Amy Fremion also attended several clinics, including one at Indiana University and one which they nsted here at North Side.

Along with these extra activities they also practiced every day during period 4a.

All this practice was not in vain, however, as the cheerleaders got to show their skills at the varsity contest. Their devotion and spirit were evidenced by the fact that they kept up their busy practice schedule even during North's suspension from the IHSA.

While the varsity cheerleaders were "waiting in the wings" to cheer for the varsity game, the twenty-four reserve cheerleaders were cheering their team on to success. During each reserve game, six of the reserve cheerleaders led the reserve fans through their cheers.

Wrestling team has troublesome season

Under the direction of Coach Donald Hunter the wrestling team had its best year. Although the record doesn't show much improvement over last year's team, this year's squad was really an improvement. The team gained valuable experience at the art of wrestling. This year's team practiced many long, hard hours and even sacrificed a few holidays to learn and become better at wrestling.

Led by seniors Mike Waggoner, Steve Loechner, and Steve Aiken, the team ended the season with one win and eight losses, which is one win better than last year's team. Returning lettermen will be Bruce Hagen, Gary Strahm, Alva Waggoner, Larry Brown, Frank Rajcany, and Doug Hall. With these returning lettermen to lead the team the wrestlers should be successful next year.

Out of the seven receiving letters, six will be returning to next year's squad. Mike Spencer, a junior, will return in the 100 yard backstroke and also is a member of the record setting relay team. Don Thompson, a junior, was a member of the record setting relay, and also swam the 100 yard breaststroke. Mike Shimel, also a junior, will be swimming on the record setting relay, and also will be returning to defend his record setting individual medley relay event. Louie Kitzmiller, a junior, will return to the record setting relay, and also try to break 50 yard freestyle record. Steve Howenstine, a junior, will return to defend his title in the 100 yard butterfly. Kerry Kennell, also a junior, will be the last returning letterman, will swim the 100 yard freestyle event and also swim in the 100 yard freestyle relay.

Highlighting this year's varsity basketball was North's month "vacation" from the Indiana High School Athletic Association. Starting the season, the Redskins compiled a 1-3 record before all-city guard Bill Schumaker was permitted to play against Bishop Luers and Kokomo. The Redskins then took their leave of absence from competition. Upon their return, North had to play three games a week trying to make up their schedule, but fell four games short as they lost the Carmel tournament and C.C. and Elkhart from seasonal play.

North finished after their reinstatement with a 6-5 record, including an opening Sectional loss to Snider, 60-51. Ten players lettered on this year's squad, five will return next year. Senior guard Rick Wells was the only Redskin to make the all-city list.

Junior 6-6 forward Bill Hinga goes high in the air to get off his jump shot over an opposing Norwell player.

Heading this year's varsity squad was By Hey, far left who led North to a 8-9 seasonal record. Assistant Coaches John Stauffer and Willie Doehrman helped Mr. Hey with the varsity besides their coaching the reserves.

Golf team has new faces, lettermen

The 1968 golf team had many new faces as the boys who were ruled ineligible last year because of accepting prizes in tournaments were permitted to complete. Junior Claude Bobilya and seniors Denny Van Houten, Steve Lash, and Phil Sower all proved to be an asset to this year's squad, along with returning lettermen John Savio, Gene Hale, Doug Hall, and Lon Rogers.

Pat Quinn puts all he has into his serve, driving him to North's top position.

Tennis played now in fall and spring

For the first time in the history of the IHSAA, tennis was played in both the spring and fall as a varsity sport. The Redskins' fall squad didn't finish as high as the spring group because their two top-seeded players, Pat Quinn and Joe Fremion, were injured in football. The nucleus of their year's squad was made of underclassmen, leaving Coach Myron Henderson plenty of talent for next year.

We Are Friendly Redskins In Our World of

ASSOCIATIONS

North's world evolved around friendships. Although strong class rivalries prevailed among the 1725 students, lasting friendships formed. By listening to the crowds in the halls during passing periods, one could learn a lot about the students at North Side. Above the noisy shuffle of feet, one could hear talk of current heart throbs, comparison of last year's amount of homework to the present, discussion of last night's ball game, whether it be victorious or unlucky. By these, we learned to laugh when the joke was on us, to understand when things didn't go our way, and most of all, to realize who our real friends were.

Because she was late for school, Carla Falls tried running but suddenly tripped, her books scattering on the steps.

Seniors maintain harmony and ideals

The Class of '68 will always remember its years at North. Despite the fact that early in the year the homerooms sometimes met only once a week, the students remained a united group. The enthusiasm and sportsmanship shown at all the sports events was, as usual, typical of all true Redskins.

Again, keeping with the Redskin tradition, the Class of '68 served their community by helping needy families through the Fort Wayne Christmas Bureau. "Best Foot Forward," the Senior Play, was another accomplishment they could be proud of.

But the Senior Prom and commencement definitely were the highlights of their school activities.

After walking through their door they will all have fond memories of their teachers and classmates and hopes for meeting again.

Student Council presidents, past and present, Sue Howe and Dan Dager, raise the state flag which was presented to North Side by State Representative Arthur C. Hayes.

Running down the hill, Seniors Karen Williams and Mike Konkle find a moment to get away from their busy schedules of studies and social activities.

A new system in reading the announcements was used during the last year. Suzi Brown and Dan Lockwood read the bulletin to the students each day just before school was dismissed.

Gene Hale and Jenny Nelson rehearse a scene from "Best Foot Forward," the senior play.

Sandy Sprunger, atop the ladder, is assisted by Bill Cowon, Janet Olofson, and Steve Aiken in securing this sign to remind students to bring food and clothes for the Christmas Bureau.

Our second year found us electing

A broken foot during practice doesn't prevent junior Bill Wehrenburg from keeping up with the team.

The Juniors, proving themselves victorious, won the first "spirit trophy" ever to be presented. In the girls' "Powder Puff" game, the Juniors outscored the Seniors by 6 to 0. Bulletin boards overflowing with campaign posters typified the class elections which gained the leadership of Bob Bossard, president; Tom McCue, vice-president; Joy Swogger, secretary-treasurer; and Jamie Wise, social chairman. Along with class sponsors, these leaders planned their social events and helped the Junior class achieve their goals in looking forward to their Senior year.

Pam Ormes and Mike Spencer take part in voting as Doug Friend and Linda Williams explain how to use the voting machine.

Sophs start the year with high goals

Excited by the thrill of winning a basketball game, a few energetic Redskin Sophomores, Jenny Motz, Pat Falvy, Nancy Gaunt,

Will Kline, Judy Latter, Mark Helmke, Sara Kolin, Sue Stone, and Randy Harter, attend the after game dance at North.

Sophomores who entered the Dome for the first time looked somewhat lost. After their first week they began finding their way around the unfamiliar building. Soon the new underclassmen began to participate in school activities and school spirit. Through class participation, pep sessions, and other functions of school life at North, sophs furthered the idea of true 'Skin citizenship. When sophs weren't busy with homework, they relaxed by attending North's affairs: concerts, dances, and plays.

Striving for higher goals and standards, the class began with such activities as electing their class officers, participating in Student Council, and combining their efforts to defeat the Juniors for the spirit trophy.

As the sophomore year progressed, they became better acquainted with each other and united to make a successful class. On May 18 they concluded their fine year at North with the Sophomore Class Party.

Sophomores take their hearing tests, determining possible ear problems.

Alone, thinking while away from his busy schedule, Dr. Anthis makes plans for the Redskin World.

Dr. Anthis motivates and directs Redskins

North Siders depend heavily upon Dr. Anthis to guide them. During his tenth year at North and fourth year as principal he used his experiences and observations from his recent trip to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe to lead Redskins. While away from his busy schedule at North Dr. Anthis finds time to take part in many educational organizations. He also has taught courses at Purdue University, Indiana University, and St. Francis College in Fort Wayne. Mrs. Anthis and their eleven-year-old son, Clinton, also are a part of the Redskin World, they accompany him to numerous North Side events.

The typical gestures of Dr. Anthis. . . .

Administration boosts incentive

Day after day the administrators were faced with many problems and much paper work. They always listened and tried to help with the problems of college choices, class schedules and personal difficulties. The secretaries aided faculty and students alike by completing forms, typing, and supervising messages. The counselors coped with disciplinary measures, college recommendations, job placements, class schedules, and dance and assembly schedules. Attendance was also a part of the daily routine. Whether it was helping with a problem, preparing a nourishing lunch or keeping our school clean and neat, they were always available and willing to help the students find the most satisfaction in their high school years.

Cooks and Custodians pave the way to nourishment and cleanliness at North

Service and cooperation are by-words of the people required to perform the necessary tasks to keep North running smoothly. Teachers fed the students' minds; cooks supplied nourishment for the scholars' bodies; while custodians cleaned the school halls and classrooms to provide a pleasant atmosphere for the Redskins.

Audio-visual equipment helped classroom teachers create a better and more realistic understanding of the subject. A modern language lab also aided teachers in stressing oral comprehension and better pronunciation of the foreign language.

We Are Patronizing Redskins In Our World of

ADVERTISING

The business world in which North Side participated stimulated Redskins as workers and scholars. Positions ambitious students filled in local businesses provided experience for future professions and money for dates and a college education. Companies offered scholarships and apprenticeships to promising students and presented awards to those who attained remarkable heights in high school. The business world has helped finance the 1967-68 Legend through the advertising which appears on the next pages. Redskins in turn supported local business organizations.

We Are Sad Redskins In Leaving Our World

AT NORTH

Graduation symbolizes something different to each of us. To some it is the long awaited chance to explore the outside world, or the opening to a life in business, or furthering our education in college. Even as some students look upon graduation, their future is undetermined. Although backgrounds and future plans differ, we are all connected in our world at North. We would like to thank Miss Thiele and the members of the '68 Legend staff who put long hours into the editing of this yearbook. We would also like to extend our thanks to Paragon for their patience.
